Chapter 1 by Monorilakkuma

I missed your scent being beside me, especially when you embrace me softly.

Do you still remember when we bought that new air freshener that smelled like Vanilla and you used so much of them? The whole house started to smell like Vanilla everywhere.

I loved it when you were beside me so often. I felt loved by you, so why did it all lead to this?

Why did you leave me? Our magic was just doing so fine and you stopped.

What was I missing? What do I don't have that she does?

I'm sorry if I made any mistakes toward you, but can't you forgive me?

I really missed you, I missed your arms around me. I missed touching your face. I missed your eyes that never failed to captivate me.

So, why did you left? Was it something I don't have for you? Is my love not enough?

Chapter 2 by Kiri

But something has changed. When did my miss turn into 'missed'? Where has this feeling gone? This feeling of missing you, this feeling of wanting to break through the walls I have placed around my heart.

This wall is for you. For the times you've left me. For the times you've come running back into my expectant arms. For the times I've prayed for you to hold me just one for time, for you to kiss me like me used to. For the time you left me for good...

My moment to shine was stripped when you left. Now there's nothing but cold. I'm the one you've left to drown in the sea. I'm the one forced to pick up the pieces of something I didn't know was broken until I saw you that day with her.

Chapter 3 by Monorilakkuma

My very heart, one and only heart, had shattered to bits and pieces when I saw you with another woman other than me, hadn't you promised me that we'd get married, to live our very lives together and have children running around our new house that is now, but a hollow and lonely empty shell.

The look on your face, being with another woman, was what made my heart ached badly.
I wanted to go there, towards your and her direction, to ask if you had really actually loved me?
Had all this time, you have been doing nothing but lie?
What was it that made you fell for her? Do I not have it?

Was it her looks you were chasing after?
Had you tell me, and I would have made myself evermore beautiful not for anyone else, but just for you, but you hadn't.
Was she gentle and ladylike? Hmm, is that what you wanted?
Had you told me to be that way, I would have tried evermore harder, just for you.

But, looking at all of these questions...
Did you even really tried to love me? Learn how to accept as how I am? If you had not love, why had you given me hope from the very beginning...?
It pains me to try and think how I could be so foolish, to let myself fall into the hands of a deceiver, you.
